

WIND AND SHINE IN EASTER WAKE

Nearly Nine Inches of Snow Piled in Huge Drifts Cripples Traffic

APRIL SKY SOON CLEAR

A white Monday came today, as an aftermath of a gray Easter Sunday, tying up traffic in the throes of the worst blizzard of the season.

Eight-and-a-half inches of snow had fallen by 7 o'clock, when it ended. A gale from the northwest, which reached a velocity of thirty miles an hour, drove the snow into deep drifts in the suburbs and piled the north side of trees and buildings with white.

Trains were late on all railroads. Some, plowing through the storm from the West, were halted by snowdrifts that had piled to the depth of from ten to fifteen feet in "cuts." Delays as great as three hours were caused.

Many telegraph and telephone wires in Camden and the suburbs went down with the weight of the snow. Trolley traffic was impeded.

The record for the coldest April 9 was almost equaled in the blizzard, when the mercury went down to twenty-eight degrees. The record for April 9 is twenty-seven degrees.

With traditional inconsistency, the April sky cleared a few minutes after the storm was halted. By noon the sun was shining brightly out of a sky that was as clear as sapphire crystals, save for a few clouds fringing the horizon.

Temperatures that tumbled with the blizzard brought hardship upon the soldiers guarding bridges in the city and suburbs. Wind-borne snow swooped down upon the exposed sentinels who patrolled their coils muffled up in their woolen greatcoats. Guard was changed frequently and the half-frozen National Guardsmen were piled with hot coffee that the company cooks kept gizzling for their headquarters fires.

It was not unusual Easter weather. For the last several years rain or snow has brought a discordant note to weather immediately following or preceding Easter Sunday, and even on the day itself. The last severe Easter weather came in 1915, when the worst blizzard of the year came up the Atlantic coast, blocking transportation and breaking wires with a 19-inch snowfall. April 3 was the date of snow usage. Over Easter snowfalls of unusual depth were three inches, April 5, 1898, and two inches April 9, 1911.

The Weather Bureau predicted that today would see the end of the blizzard, with a fair and warmer day tomorrow.

SUSPECT IN YARNALL MURDER SET AT LIBERTY

Widow of Victim Convinced That Collins Did Not Kill Her Husband

Robert Collins, of 1807 Bainbridge street, the young negro arrested on suspicion that he was involved in the murder of Harold E. Yarnall, at 822 Pine street on March 25, was freed today by Magistrate Beaton at the City Hall Police Court. The discharge of Collins was ordered after it was testified that Mrs. Yarnall had been unable to identify him as the negro she saw the night her husband was killed.

Mrs. Yarnall was not at the magistrate's court. James E. Hood, an attorney, representing the Yarnall family, and Detective Calhoun both testified that Mrs. Yarnall had said Collins was not the man when he had been brought to her for identification.

Mr. Hood, one of the attorneys acting for Mrs. Yarnall, said that Mrs. Yarnall did not want to see any injustice done to Collins. He said that Mrs. Yarnall was now convinced that Collins was not the negro who murdered her husband.

After the decision of the court to free Collins former Judge Gordon explained his reason for having entered the case as follows:

"I went into the case to protect a poor friendless man from an unjust accusation of the worst crime known to mankind. The situation was full of peril. Happily, this morning he was exonerated and his innocence established. He is again free, but a very sick man and in need of hospital treatment. Now that justice has been attained my connection with the Yarnall murder case ends."

Collins was placed in charge of Dr. A. B. Jackson, of the Mercy Hospital for Negroes. He will remain there until cured of his nervous breakdown.

BROTHERS TEAR DOWN STARS AND STRIPES

Remove American Flag From House Front and Show Defiance When Arrested

Two brothers, who tore down American flags from the home of Joseph E. Houseworth, 235 West Lehigh avenue, were held in heavy hall today by Magistrate Price. Had he caught them in the act of taking down the Stars and Stripes, Houseworth, who is a descendant of an old revolutionary family, said he would have shot the prisoners on sight.

They gave their names as Joseph and Adam Agnew, of 608 Wensley street. On their way home early today they saw the flag, draped over the front of the Houseworth home, and, according to the police, pulled them down to show their contempt. Policeman Miles saw the youths carrying the flags at Twenty-fourth street and Lehigh avenue. On being questioned they refused to say where they got them and laughed at the bluecoat when informed they were under arrest. Miles blew a whistle and Private Watchman Esrey aided him in taking the brothers to the Ridge and Midvale avenue station.

They asserted they had no intention of desecrating the flags, but nevertheless could give no reason for taking them.

Houseworth said if the prisoners were actuated by patriotic motives he would buy two flags for them.

The two brothers refused to make any comment.

"If they were taken down in a spirit of disrespect," said Houseworth, "I would have shot both of you." At this the brothers flushed and hung their heads.

The Magistrate held each in $1000 bail for a further hearing.

MAP OF NAVY YARD TRACED IN WATERMARK

Search Being Made for German Officer of Suspicious Paper He Lost in Fight Over the War

A map of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, cleverly watermarked on a piece of oiled paper, is said to have been found on an alleged German sympathizer today, according to United States recruiting officers, during a fight that followed a war argument in a factory at Twelfth and Wood streets.

The owner of the map, Max Hoffman, is being sought.

"I have something that can wipe Philadelphia off the map," the police say Hoffman said to fellow workmen in the plant.

When Hoffman ran away after the fight workmen picked up the piece of paper. At first glance it appeared to be blank, but when held up to the light it was said that the watermarking unmistakably represented a plan drawing of the navy yard and adjoining territory of Saguay Island.

Martin hurried to the United States navy recruiting headquarters, at 1310 Arch street, with the map. Captain Hand, the officer in charge, said he had not seen it, and agents at the Department of Justice say they know nothing of the affair.

GIRLS' HIGH STUDENTS SURPRISE DR. GOWING

New Principal's First Appearance in Assembly Turned Into Welcome Party

By M'LISS

More than a thousand girls—the pupils at the Girls' High School, Seventeenth and Spring Garden streets—and sixty-five feminine members of the faculty, demonstrated woman's ability to keep a secret when a successful surprise party was "pulled off" today for the new principal, Doctor Fred Gowling, Miss Katherine Puchon's successor.

When Doctor Gowling appeared in the assembly hall for the first assembly of the school since his accession to the principalship he was literally embowered with floral tributes. The entire school arose and sang the school song, "Alma Mater"; guests were seated on the platform, and what the new principal expected to be a routine meeting became a welcome party.

Among those present on the platform were Simon Gratz, chairman of the high school committee; Henry R. Edmunds, president of the Board of Education; Avery D. Harrington and Thomas Shallockross, members of the board. There was speechmaking, but no allusion was made to the recent controversy in the board over the manner of Doctor Gowling's election to the office, except negatively by the conspicuous absence of Dr. Edward Martin and Superintendent of Schools John P. Garber, who opposed the board's methods of what they called "rail-roading" him into the principalship.

In felicitating the school on acquiring Doctor Gowling, Mr. Gratz spoke of him as "a man of character, of administrative ability and culture," and emphasized the fact that he not only knew him personally but also knew his record as an educator.

"Doctor Gowling is the right man for the

Special Housewiring Inducement

April is the National Wire-your-home Month. Thousands and thousands of homes are being wired as a result of the concentrated effort being simultaneously directed all over the country toward equipping already-built houses for Electric Service. Philadelphia will celebrate by offering a liberal plan for financing the introduction of electric wiring in already-built houses. We will allow twelve or twenty-four months in which to pay for the wiring, and we will also allow six months for the payment of all lighting fixture bills not exceeding $75, subject to the terms and conditions outlined in this advertisement.

Send for your copy of this free book—it tells about our housewiring plan and shows how easily already-built houses can be wired for Electricity

The Plan

The Philadelphia Electric Company will pay the contractor's bill for wiring—repayment to be made to the Company in twelve or twenty-four monthly payments without added charge for interest. The Company will also pay the lighting fixture bill up to $75—the amount to be repaid in six monthly payments, without added charge for interest. It is understood, of course, that this offer applies only where satisfactory credit is established.

What This Offer Means To You

With the present low residence rates for Electricity in Philadelphia, Electric Light actually costs less in dollars and cents than any other artificial illuminant; therefore, the use of Electricity for light and household service in the home should be as universal in the older dwellings as in the new.

The liberal terms of payment outlined above provide an exceptionally convenient way of introducing Electric Service into already-built homes without the burden of heavy initial expense or added interest charges. Another point we would like to emphasize is this: the longer you delay in having your home wired for Electricity, the greater the chance that you will have to pay more, for present abnormal

How To Proceed

You may obtain wiring bids from any recognized electrical contractor; or upon request we will obtain such estimates for you. When you and we have accepted the same and contracts have been signed in our regular form, we will pay the wiring and fixture bills as outlined above, after the wiring has been completed and approved by the Board of Fire Insurance Underwriters and our own inspectors.

We will also be glad to help you lay out the best and most economical lighting system for you. There is no charge for this service and you incur no obligation by requesting estimates.
